Johnson&Johnson

Background

Johnson & Johnson has played a key part in making the lives people better. As the science of human health developed significantly in the past years it has become even more important to define what health is and what being well means in everyday life. Their products, services, ideas have impact on the lives of at least one billion people.

Assignment

Organization changes had taken place in the Johnson&Johnson operation affecting the entire European staff. In this situation the company found it important to supports its top management with business coaching. They believed that the in the given tough market conditions the leaders can be successful only if they are supported with a tailor made program that answers their questions and helps them solve their issues. In Hungary they assigned Human Value International.

Results

The confidential nature of the project does not allow us to share factual information, however, it can be said that we established a very efficient, productive and trust based work relationship with the affected leaders. In this environment, the predefined goals were reached with the help of Human Value International's leadership coaching methodology.
